

Rewiring the Network Report - Communication Kit

Through Rewiring the Network (for the twenties), the members of IETM took part in a year-long journey to collectively engage in envisioning a transition into a more sustainable future for the network and for the performing arts. Under the coordination of our research partner IDEA Consult, we have developed this transition from an artistic, social, economic, ecological and human point of view. We have identified current pressures and promises of the performing arts. We have identified alternative models, values, practices and experiments that we as a sector – along with our funders – should bring in from the margins to the centre.

The report of our work is now out and it marks a new beginning. This report is an accumulation of ideas which now need to be turned into concrete strategies for the coming years. Our work can provide IETM members with keys to change their own practices and organisations. Likewise, our findings can be of use for other cultural networks and organisations which are looking to change their existing methods and habits and to discover new ways to work together in a sustainable way, internationally.

You can use this communication kit to help us share the report.

---

Visuals

Please find the visuals of the Rewiring the Network Report in here. Feel free to share and use them as you see fit.

---

By email

Feel free to adapt the following text:

Through the Rewiring the Network, the members of IETM – International network for contemporary performing arts took part in a year-long journey to collectively envision a transition into a more sustainable future for the performing arts.

Along with their research partner IDEA Consult, IETM and its members have developed this transition from an artistic, social, economic, ecological and human point of view. They have also identified alternative models, values, practices and experiments that the performing arts sector and its funders should bring in from the margins to the centre.

The full report of Rewiring the Network is now out, providing an accumulation of ideas which now need to be turned into concrete strategies for the coming years. They believe this work can provide cultural networks and organisations with the keys to change their own practices, in order to make the future of the performing arts more sustainable.

You can download the full report here.

---

On Social Media

Share IETM's post on Twitter or Facebook using #RewiringIETM, or make your own using the text below for inspiration:

Are you a #performingarts professional or a #culturalworker looking to discover new ways to work in a sustainable way, internationally?

Immerse yourself in Rewiring the Network, @IETM international network for contemporary performing arts' transition towards a more sustainable performing arts ecosystem.

 Discover alternative models and practices to achieve #sustainability on the #artistic, #social, #economic, #ecological and #human level.

 Read The FULL report on ietm.org/RewiringReport

Rewiring the Network is an IETM project coordinated by IDEA Consult. #RewiringIETM